During the development of the project, our team used AI tools to assist with certain parts of our documentation. Our main use of AI was to help improve formatting, correct grammar, and generating images to better illustrate our ideas.

Our team did not heavily rely on AI to complete this project. The main ideas, requirements, decisions, and analysis were developed and reviewed by our team members. AI was mainly used as a supporting tool to improve the presentation and readability of our work rather than make decisions for us.

Anything the AI generated was reviewed by our team before being included in the final documents. We made sure that the information accurately represented our project and that the final work reflected our own understanding and decisions. Overall, Ai was a supporting role in our project, while the team itself remained responsible for the final content.
